The Kentucky Historical Society and the Kentucky Genealogical Society present

Second Saturday Family-History Workshop
"Lost and Found: Early African American Entrepreneurs" and "Using Family Folklore to Bring Genealogy to Life"

Saturday, November 8, 2008
10:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m.
Thomas D. Clark Center for Kentucky History
100 West Broadway
Frankfort, KY 40601

Little research has been devoted to uncovering the participation of African Americans in the commonwealth's early free market economy. In the morning session, Dr. Anne Butler of Kentucky State University will highlight numerous instances of early entrepreneurial activity among Kentucky African Americans and will show how public records and historical narratives are used to locate and document such activity.

In the afternoon, Bob Gates of the Kentucky Historical Society will describe how family folklore, integrated with genealogical data, can create a clearer picture of your ancestors' lives and the times in which they lived. Techniques and resources for gathering and utilizing this information will also be discussed.

Registration before noon on Friday, November 7, is required. Workshop participation is complimentary. A light lunch is available for registrants only from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. for $6, payable at the door. For more information or to register, call 502-564-1792, ext. 4460, or email Refdesk@ky.gov.

Monthly Bonus Presentation by KTIG – "Technology for Using Audio and Video in Your Family Histories"
The Kentucky Technology in Genealogy Users Group (KTIG) offers a free monthly program at 2:00 p.m. following the close of each "Second Saturday" Family-History Workshop to help support family-history researchers' use and understanding of technology as it applies to genealogy. All interested persons are invited to participate.
